

HYPERALLERGIC

Reggie Burrows Hodges, "For the Greater Good: White Ground" (2019) acrylic and pastel on canvas, 80 x 96 inches (image courtesy the artist and Karma, New York)

Art

Your Concise New York Art Guide for February 2021

Your list of must-see, fun, insightful, and very New York art events this month.

Dessane Lopez Cassell and Cassie Packard February 3, 2021

It's February, and groundhog mumbles aside, we're one month closer to sunshine and longer days. To break up some of the winter slush, we've rounded up 10 art events worth checking out — from exhibitions, to film series, to book fairs and interdisciplinary projects — many of which are available online.

* * *

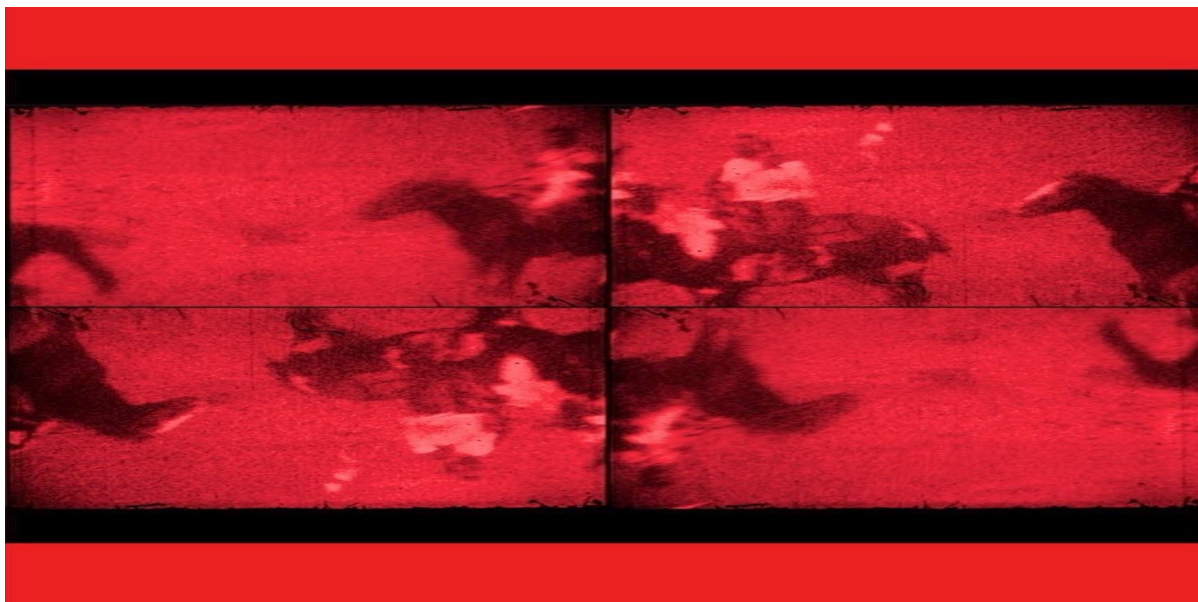

Laura Aguilar, "Grounded #111" (2006), inkjet print, 14 1_2 x 15 inches (© Laura Aguilar ; image courtesy Leslie-Lohman Museum of Art)

Laura Aguilar: Show and Tell

When: February 6–May 9

Where: Leslie-Lohman Museum of Art (26 Wooster St, Soho, Manhattan)

Show and Tell is the first major retrospective dedicated to the Chicana lesbian photographer Laura Aguilar, who passed away in April 2018. The traveling exhibition spans three decades of radical work through which Aguilar laid bare her relationship with her own marginalized identity and documented her brown and queer communities. Check out Monica Uszerowicz's review of its Miami iteration here.

Alan Michelson, still from Pehin Hanska ktepí (The killed Long Hair) (2021), single channel video installation, wool blanket, looped video projection, 84 x 68 inches (image courtesy the artist)

Speculations on the Infrared

When: through March 6

Where: by appointment at EFA Project Space (323 West 39th Street, Midtown West, Manhattan)

EFA is launching its community- and future-oriented “Bright Futures” programming season with a group exhibition that centers speculative Indigenous futurism to explore decolonizing strategies that go beyond visibility and inclusion. Curated by Christopher Green, the show features work ranging from prints and photographs to interactive multimedia installations and performance pieces.